The dance begins at half-past eight
And Charley's late and in a flutter
His toilet must be very swell,
And quite too all oxtremely utter,
His very hurry makes him him slow,
Because he knows he mustn t linger—
When suddenly his collar stud
Slips from between his thumb and finger

It must have fallen on the floor.
He stoops and hunts, but cannot fine it ferhaps it rolled beneath the bed, And hides away secure behind it, in vain he creeps on hands and knees.
Around each bed-post feeling, peering The stud is nowhere to be found,
And half-past eight is quickly nearing He searches every inch of floor,
In every crack and crevice poking
The little game of hide and seek
Is now a matter not for joking
'Tis half past eight—'tis nice o'clock
He cannot wait another unnute.
He rises to the crisis then.

His toilet now is soon complete, And to the dance our Charley hurrice, Alast his collar's pinned awry, His face shows trace of his worries Re has susplemens of his hair, And dreadful doubts about the parting— forgetten to consult the glass In all the flurry of late starting

He finds that all the prettiest girls
Have been engaged for all the dances
Grows hot and red to find himselt
The object of derisive giances.
The row of walldowers round the room—
Some thin, some fat; and mostly faded—
No consolation can afford
To feelings so intensely faded

But yet, concealing his chagrin (For Charley was still of the boldest), He put a look of courage on, And chose the thinnest and the oldest As gallantly he led her out
As it she'd been a sweet sixteener
But when he took her to her seat
His heart in secret boat serener

He took her out to supper, too,
And gaye her wine and cake and nees
And sought to pass the time away
With many commonplace devices
Relieved was he when all broke up,
And one by one the guests departed
And to his chamber he returned
As dult and wretched as he started

In melancholy mood undressing.
An exclamation passed his lips
That one would bardly call a blessing
And as the cause of all his woos
Popped innocently from his stocking.

Beecher as a Journalist

Now that Mr. Beecher is out of the harness, one of his friends writes a description of him as journalist and editor. He sertainly was not the delight of compositors or publishers. He usually came to the editorial office about the time his manuscript was expected, but with not a word written. What time there might be left for him he exhausted in talking of the topmost topic of the hour, sometimes bubbling over with excitement, sometimes with fun. When an imperative demand came for his copy he caught up a pen, turned to the near-est desk, shut himself up impenetrably in his shell, and "drove his pen across the paper as if it were a printing machine and he were an electric battery.' He left the sheets for a boy to pick up and carry off to the compositors' room For him the work was done. He never 'bothered" to read what he had written, and punctuation and proof reading, the corrections of errors, omissions, etc., were left for some one clse to do What he wrote in a hear and at a sitting went like a ball from a minie rifle from one end of the land to the other Altough Mr Beecher was not an admin Istrative editor and never attempted for any length of time to manage a newspaper, he still created a new school of journalism, giving it impulse and inspi

It is reported that ex-Senator Paddock, of Nebraska, will succeed Assistant Secretary Upton, who retired from the treasury department yesterday. A STORY comes from New York to Lillings had its day in congress on l'uesday, when, upon the roll being called for the introduction of bills, the representatives from this scate present ed no less than 117, one of the most important being that of Mr. Cannon, for an act to indemnify the state of Illimois for certain swamp lands, and to enable the state to locate by certificates any public lands outside its boundaries as compensation for those lost in this fear that Guiteau's execution will re-

THE Democratic newspapers are attempting to make capital out of the tact that Von Steuben, who served in the American army a hundred years ago, and whose descendants were so peals to their generosity. It this be highly honored in this country recently, demanded pay and good security before tendering his sword to Washington. Well, suppose he did. Didn't Carl Schurtz demand pay and security before making campaign speeches? and were not his reasonable demands always complied with? and is he not to day at the head of the great moral reform element of the Republican party?-tilohe Democrat.

Tue anti-polygamy bill which Senator Edmunds introduced on Monday is very sweeping. It declares that hereafter any man who, in a Territory, marries more than one woman shall be punished heavily by both fine and imprisonment. The bill isn't a law yet. but a tide is rising, which, sooner or later, will sweep polygamy in the Unit ed States out of existence. In the words of President Arthur, polygamy 14 an "odious crime," and "revolting to the moral and religious sense of Christendom." The trouble is not in getting laws against it, but in enforcing them. It is a serious trouble, too.

Since the war between France and Germany the growth of the two countries has been curious in its contrasts Gormany has increased by 4,500,000 anula, but France by only 612,000. Births in France in 1807 were 264 in every 1,000 inhabitants, but in 1878 they were only 25% in every 1,000. The figures which correspond to these in Germany are 38 3 5 and 38 i. For 1867 the excess of births over deaths in France was 140,000, in 1878 it was only 98,175. Germany, on the other hand, shows an excess for 1869 of 428,000, and for 1878 of 556,506. With these figures as a starting point, it is intimated that at the end of the century, provided emigration and immigration do not interfere with the conditions as they are now, France will have searcely 40,000,000 to the 60,080,000 that Germany will have. And this growth of Germany is in despite of un immense emigration to the United States and other countries, while nobody leaves France. The fact is, that the Germans have large families, while the French are just the reverse in this en'y, commands our inqualified endorse. respect. The average French family ment Appreciating you great success consists of but two or three children, while the Germans number at least Other Bull. Markice Strakoscu,

When we take up a Buston paper that has been noted for the rancorous charnoter of its opposition to the President, and find it compelled to admit that this message is "in able and creditable state paper," "direct and clear in style, broad in its scope, patriotic in spirit, and, in the main admirable in its recommendations," the more candid and impartial judgment of the country will perceive that the helm of state is, indeed, in the firm grasp of a capable and conscientious chief magistrate .- Boston Traveler.

Ir is said that President Arthur will not only have formal evening receptions after the holiday sesson, but that he also intends, with the assistance of the wives of the members of his cabinet, to have afternoon receptions once a week, such as the ladies of the white house have had hitherto. The President will hold his first public reception in the white house on New Year's day. Secretary Lincoln's wife will not begin receiving regularly on Wednesdays until the first Wednesday in January: nor will Secretary Folger's daughter be ready to receive cals at her father; residence until after the holidays. As Secretary Hunt's wife is in mourning for her father, his family will, of course receive no formal visitors.

A PACKED house greated the appearance of the Barlow, Wilson, Primrose & West minstrel troupe at the opera hall last evening, and all seemed highly pleased with the prolonged and varied entertain ment; but while many new features were introduced the company is not quite so strong as it was last season. Luke Schoolcraft, George Wilson and Coes, Gale and Howard carried off the honors of the evening in their lively specialties, while Green and Rowe, the contortionists, astonished everybody by their wonderful feats. The performance concluded with the musical Two Decatur firemen died yesterday. | burlesque, "All-I've-Eat." The hall was so full that chairs had to be placed in aisles to accommodate those who could acob H. Miller Called Home at Eleven O'clock first Night-Sketch of his Life.

Beath of Ban Young, another Becatur Firemer on Yesterday.

JACOB H. MILLER. Our many readers in the city and counry will be pained to learn of the death of one of our well known citizens, Mr. Jacob H. Miller, which occurred last night at 11 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. John R. Miller, brother of the deceased, in postoffice block. On the 26th of last October, while he was feeling unwell, the deceased accompanied a party of friends to a point near Morley, Mo., on a four weeks' hunting expedition, and while there he was taken ill and came home sick about the 20th of November. He had a chill in Missouri, and he has been ill since his return home with a severe type of typhoid fever. He had the best of care and attention during his painful illness, and it was believed that he would recover, but he took a change for the worse yesterday and passed away an hour before midnight. Jacob H. Miller was born in Bourbon county, Kentucky, on May 29th, 1834, and was 47 years, 6 months and 15 days old at the time of his death. He left Kentucky in November, 1860, and moved to Crawfordsville, Ind. In November of the following year he came to Decatur, since which time he has resided in this city. He has been a worthy member of the Masonic order for a quarter of a century. He was one of the charter members of Rescue Hose Co. No. 1, and has been the treasurer of the company for a number of years. He was also treasurer of the the Decatur Fire Department, and took an an analysis of the service of the service of the service of the good of the service of the Masonic order for a quarter of a century. He was assessor of Decatur township for one year and township collector for three years. During the past three years the deceased has been treasurer of the Macon County Agricultural Board. He leaves one brother, Mr. John R Miller, with whom he has made his home since 1861; one sister residing at Covington and another at Lexington, Kentucky; another sister died several years ago of consumption and a brother who was a member of the 9th Kentucky in battle at Richmond, Ky. The death of Mr. Miller is generally lamented by all his friends and acquaintances in this community, where he was well and favorably known. He was re-THE net proceeds of the Smith reading, specied by everybody, and was a good given at the opera house on Tuesday

THE FUNERAL SERVICES will be held at the tabernacle on Saturday, Dec. 17th, at 2 p. m. Services by the Rev. D. P. Bunn. BEN YOUNG.

The death of the above-named young man took place at 3:30 o'clock, on yesterday afternoon, at the residence of his brother, Emil Young, on West Eldorado street. The deceased was 24 years of age on the 5th day of last August. He was born in Baden-Baden, Germany, and came to Decatur several years ago. He was an honored and active member of Young America Hook and Ladder Company, and a member of the Odd-Fellows' order.
